The genius plan. conscience.

Once upon a time, there was a poor bank near a residence. It was so poor that it had no security. One day, a robber named James decided to take all the money in there - he got armed and forced the bank worker to give him the money. "And if you won't... I'll shoot you and I'll find your family and ~~strike~~ them too." He threatened, voice steady and stern as he held the gun firmly.

Luckily enough, two boys, Romul and Timothy, were playing near. They knew it would soon be the worker's shift's end and they wanted to play a joke on him. They took the ropes and tied them to the columns of the bank. They waited, but soon the robber went out of the bank. He hadn't notice the ropes and tripped over, catching the attention of a sheriff who passed by. He stopped and walked up to the robber, gun ready and steady in his hand.

"Hands behind your back!" - He yelled, as he put the robber's wrists in the handcuffs.

The robber was put to jail, boys got the award money, were back in the bank and sheriff got a new ranking - the story ends happily.
